NOTE: The owner is responsible for repair of all plumbing pipes servicing their individual unit, including damage caused to their unit or adjacent units. Under Georgia Law, it is clear that repairs to the various elements of the limited common elements (other than structural) are the responsibility of the unit owner. This would include all plumbing pipes, which services exclusively for one unit, which supply water exclusively for the unit in question whether the pipes are physically located inside or outside the unit. See O.C.G.A Sections 44-3-75(a)(3) and 44-3-80(a).

Failure to post these rules and failure to abide by these procedures will constitute negligence in the event of a plumbing disaster. The owner of the unit where the water or cause of blockage originated will be responsible for damages resulting from any of the above. Water damage is the responsibility of the owner and should be covered under the owners' H06 insurance. If there happens to be an insurance claim under the associations' insurance policy the owner is responsible for paying the $10,000 deductible.
